

Introducing SparkSpace ⚡

SparkSpace is the first training platform co-created with young people to support library professionals and volunteers to meaningfully engage children and young people within their services.

Built on the Lundy Model of Child participation, SparkSpace gives library teams the expert tools and confidence to engage, include, and co-create with children and young people.

Packed with practical, hands-on learning, including videos, quizzes, and a toolkit.

SparkSpace is free and available to everyone, thanks to funding from The Foyle Foundation.

Discover

SparkSpace

More details

The platform supports you and your teams to:

Build confidence in working with children and young people

Create more inclusive spaces, including for children and young people with Special Educational Needs and Disabilities.

Communicate more confidently with young people and encourage their involvement

Use outreach and social media in relevant and creative ways that directly engage children and young people

Discover

SparkSpace

On your social media

Please feel free to use and share for your own channels:

 SparkSpace has just launched, and I wanted to share it with you! It's a new training platform from @Libraries Rising, co-created with young people, and designed to help library staff and volunteers better connect, engage and co-create with children and young people.

It's completely free and full of practical tools and learning resources that really help build confidence and support library teams to create services where young people feel understood, empowered and inspired.

[OPTIONAL] I can't wait to use it for

You can access the learning here

<https://librariesrising.org.uk/sparkspace-course-intro/>

 SparkSpace has arrived! It's a brand new, free training platform from @Libraries Rising, co-created with young people to help library teams build confidence to meaningfully engage children and young people within their services.

Every module has been shaped directly by young people, ensuring that the content is relevant and aligned with what children and young people actually value from library services.

I'm excited to start using it, and you can access it here:

<https://librariesrising.org.uk/sparkspace-course-intro/>